

Exemplary Behavior by Sanjeet Kumar Kalandi

Sanjeet Kumar Kalandi, a taxi driver in our company, has shown high level of self-estimate and ethical values. Very recently, while serving a senior executive of the company, who had come from out station, Sanjeet realized that the officer had left his expensive mobile phone in his car. The moment Sanjit noticed the handset, his sense of responsibility instantly directed him to rush to the office complex where he had dropped the officer, with the hope of tracking the rightful owner of the handset and returning it to him. However, he was late as the executive was not visible in the corridor. Undaunted, Sanjeet showed an exceptional amount of common sense and went to the travel department and handed over the mobile phone to the manager.

When Speed@TRF congratulated Sanjeet for wining a Shabash Award for his exemplary ethical behavior and questioned him "What motivated you?", his prompt reply was "My parents have taught me good ethical values and etiquette. I am extremely proud of them and will always uphold good values that they have given to me."

Sanjeet is a Matriculate and he contributes his earning towards running the family with consists of his parents, a brother and three unmarried sisters. Sanjeet firmly believes that "cleanliness is next to Godliness" and so whenever he gets spare time he uses it to keep his car in spick and span condition.
